

Did You Know 10.13.21

Boy was I glad worked ahead for once and had my did you know ready to go last week! For the past two years, I've been concerned about getting COVID due to my past cancer status. A medication I'm on (apparently for life now) is hard on your lungs and I was scared what the combination would do. Some of you are saying to yourself....why would she tell these personal things....but I look at it as a "health" thing and never dreamed I would be one of the ones who was in this position. Anyway, early last week I was diagnosed with COVID, after telling my husband he was being a baby and he "just" had the flu. And I'm so grateful to have been vaccinated, grateful I was given an immediate treatment plan that included an infusion and most of all....grateful it was mild and I'm feeling so good!

13. The National Conference on Race & Ethnicity is offering a webinar on October 20, 2021 at 3pm CST for a $25 fee. Managing Difficult Conversations and Dynamics in the Classroom—an Interactive Workshop will show how we can facilitate conversations that emerge in our classrooms around issues of race, ethnicity, gender, sexual orientation, nationality and disability. When we hear statements or witness situations that we don't know how to handle, we often walk away feeling bad that we didn't do better. Despite socially conscious aspirations, instructors often struggle in determining the best ways to confront difficult issues like oppression and privilege in the classroom. Through interactive scenarios we will explore what it means to live at a time when cross-cultural interactions are increasing and intervention expectations are changing. Before anyone thinks I forgot the most important thing....I didn't. I'm most grateful for my staff who keep rolling along, knocking it out of the park for two weeks without me there. I have a group of women working with me that are amazing, motivated and would do anything for our customers. So please let us know how we can help—it's our job and we love it!
Take care until next week!
